Interviewer remarks are recorded by the interviewer on completion of an interview. They apply to all versions of a questionnaire, including panel cases and Spanish language interviews. The remarks are meant to capture additional or supplemental information about obtaining the case, including if other people were present, how cooperative the respondent was and whether or not a fee was used. Beginning in 2004, interviewers also included information about their race/ethnicity. The interviewer remarks also detail the mode of data collection, and for English language interviews, whether or not the interview could have been completed in Spanish instead.
